About us

Mary and Lisa

Mary and Lisa. They have been best friends since childhood and have always shared a love for pets. As they grew up and pursued their respective careers, they decided to create a platform where pet owners and professionals could connect seamlessly.

As pet owners, they faced a common problem - finding reliable and trustworthy professionals to care for their beloved companions. Conversely, as pet lovers and professionals themselves, they struggled to find pet owners who shared their passion for animals and were willing to pay for their services.

Recognizing this mutual challenge, Mary and Lisa decided to bridge the gap between pet owners and professionals by creating a platform that would cater to both parties.

Today, Madepet has grown into a thriving ecosystem where pet owners can easily find and connect with professionals who share their passion for pet care. The platform has expanded to offer a wide range of services, including pet sitting, grooming, training, and veterinary care, all with the goal of providing a seamless and trustworthy solution for finding the perfect professional for your beloved companion.

Our mission is to provide a seamless and trustworthy platform that connects pet owners with top-notch professionals. With MADEPET, you can easily search and connect with qualified experts who share your passion for pet care, ensuring your pet receives the best care possible.

The Benefits of Owning a Pet: Exploring the physical and mental health benefits of pet ownership.

Are you considering getting a pet? Well, you're in for a treat! Owning a pet can bring immense joy, companionship, and unconditional love into your life. But did you know that pets can also have a positive impact on your physical and mental well-being? Let's dive into the amazing benefits of owning a pet.

1. Improved Physical Health: 1. Increased Exercise: Dogs, in particular, require daily walks or playtime, which encourages their owners to engage in physical activity. Regular exercise has numerous benefits, including improved cardiovascular health, weight management, and reduced risk of various health issues.

2. Lower Blood Pressure: Interacting with pets has been shown to lower blood pressure and heart rate. The presence of a pet can have a calming effect, which can be beneficial for individuals with cardiovascular issues.

3. Stronger Immune System: Studies suggest that exposure to pets, especially during childhood, can boost the immune system. Growing up with pets may decrease the risk of allergies, asthma, and other autoimmune disorders.

4. Enhanced Mental Well-being: 1. Reduced Loneliness: Pets offer companionship and unconditional love, which can significantly alleviate feelings of loneliness and provide a sense of purpose. They can always listen to and vent to a warm snuggle when you need it most.

2. Stress Relief: The act of petting or playing with a pet releases endorphins (feel-good hormones) in your brain, promoting relaxation and reducing stress, anxiety, and depression. Pets are nature's most loyal stress-relieving companions.

3. Increased Socialization: Pets can act as social facilitators, making it easier to connect with others. Whether it's taking your dog to the park or joining pet-related communities, owning a pet can expand your social circle.

4. Mental Stimulation: 1. Cognitive Enhancement: Engaging with pets, such as teaching them tricks or solving puzzles together, stimulates your brain. This can improve cognitive function and memory, particularly in older adults.

2. Creative Outlet: Some pet owners find joy in documenting their pet's adventures through photography, writing, or art. This creative outlet provides a sense of fulfillment and can boost overall mood.

Owning a pet comes with responsibilities and requires a commitment of time, effort, and resources. However, the rewards are immeasurable. The physical and mental health benefits of pet ownership are significant, ranging from improved cardiovascular health to enhanced mood and reduced loneliness.

So, whether you're a dog lover, cat enthusiast, or prefer smaller companions like birds or fish, the bond and companionship that pets bring to our lives are truly priceless. Consider adopting a furry friend and experience the transformative power of unconditional love and caring.
